

I am appalled and sickened by the introduction scene to Monday Night Football on November 15, 2004. My 2 year old grandson loves football and was watching when this was aired to the public. This is an unacceptable thing for the public to be exposed to. I believe the FCC should investigate this display of sex on public television and those responsible should be reprimanded and a formal apology given to the American television viewers. We cannot protect the innocence of our children when adults are allowed to display this kind of trash on television. The network owners have a responsibility to us to help protect adults and children from what we saw last Monday evening. We will no longer watch NFL Football on Monday nights.
